

Trolling and News

- Gyges Effect: A phenomenon whereby Internet users experience a loss of inhibition that they would otherwise not experience face to face.
- With little personal interaction, in computer world with no filters or contrition, users lose empathy.
- On the early Web, news sites' comment sections became ideal venue for pointless vicious attacks.
- This normalized trolling and set stage for even more widespread occurrence in social media.